

Panel II : Climate Change & Ocean Nexus: Needs for Preemptive Legal Measures

Panelists

Topic: Challenges of Water Management for Climate Change– Lessons from the Drought Crisis of Taiwan in 2021

Dr. Ren-Chuan Kevin Kao

*Assistant Professor,
National Taipei University, College of Law, Taiwan
Director of Center for Energy,
Environment and Human Society, College of Law,
National Taipei University, Taiwan*

Biography:

Ren-Chuan Kevin Kao is an assistant professor at the College of Law of National Taipei University, Taiwan. His primary areas of expertise are constitutional law, administrative law, environmental law, energy law, and climate change law. He has published on wide subjects in books, and law reviews. He is the current director of “Center for Energy, Environment and Human Society, College of Law, National Taipei University”. He serves on the Reviewing and Consulting Committee of Legal Affairs, Ministry of Interior, and the Reviewing and Consulting Committee of Coastal Management, Construction and Planning Agency, Ministry of the Interior. He is also a member of Reviewing and Consulting Committee of Legal Affairs, Environment Protection Administration of the Cabinet of Taiwan.